The second session was organized in Plovdiv – the biggest city of the South-central region on July 24-25. Twenty eight teachers from Plovdiv, Pazardjik, Haskovo, Smolyan, Madan and Rudozem took part in the training.

Group work and discussions challenged the participants with new ideas and fun scientific facts putting forward the contribution of women in both the ancient and modern scientific world.

Certificates are always making teachers feel well.

The third session took place on September 4-5 in Burgas – the biggest city on the South sea side.

Twenty seven teachers participated to the training and a new module on Gender in the music appeared as a result of the discussions.

- I liked the different points of view and the good practices;

- The ideas are applicable in any subject matter of the secondary education;
- I liked the group work and the presentation of the lessons showing the entry points to talk about gender equality in career choices.

The fourth training was organized in Dupnitsa – South-west region of Bulgaria on September 11-12.

Twenty seven teachers participated to the training coming from ten different towns and villages in the region.

The fifth training took place in Vratza – North-east part of Bulgaria on November 16-17.

Forty-two teachers attended the training, coming from 15 towns and villages in the region.

„We want to spend more time with you“, shared the teachers at the end of the training, „this is the most interesting training in which we have participated since many years“, „two days are not enough for everything that we would like to discuss with you“.

The last sixth training is being organized in Veliko Tarnovo (North central region) in December (18-19).
